

1796 ARCOLE ORDER OF BATTLE

CONTINGENT	FRENCH	POINTS	86	TURNS	18	WEATHER	Overcast, heavy ground
1 Unit represents	1 regiment	GENERAL PROVISIONS ON THE BATTLE
1 Infantry soldier	1 battalion	We are on the third day of battle. The terrain in the central section is marshy due to heavy rains in the previous days. Infantry units venturing there lose 2 MP, and cavalry and artillery units 5 MP, unless they proceed in column along the sand-colored causeways. Cavalry cannot charge on marshy terrain. Artillery adds an Objective card and a Shot card due to heavy terrain. All units advance toward enemy positions, except Rampon's, which is manning the causeway in the 4th sector. Guieu crosses the bridge at Albaredo and proceeds toward the Austrian defense area, then turns left to flank the enemy light infantry flanking Arcole. The bridges can be crossed at normal speed, but in column. The French win if they capture Arcole at the end of the allotted turns.

1 Infantry soldier	1 battalion	We are on the third day of battle. The terrain in the central section is marshy due to heavy rains in the previous rounds. Infantry units venturing into it lose 2 MP, and cavalry and artillery units 5 MP, unless they proceed in column marching along the sand-colored causeways. Cavalry cannot charge on marshy terrain. Artillery adds an Objective card and a Shot card due to heavy terrain. All units are stationary to guard their assigned sectors, except Provera's brigade, which is advancing from the 5th sector to the 4th sector to attempt to attack Masséna's division from the left. The bridges can be crossed at normal speed, but in column marching. The Austrians win if, at the end of the allotted turns, they still maintain possession of Arcole.
